ANALYSIS

BEST BET: RACE 1, PASSIONFORTREASURE

FIRST RACE

PASSIONFORTREASURE is going to be tough as the favorite in the opener, dropping in class off a pair of decent efforts against richer; Beyer edge will mean a light price but if she runs to that last figure she's a likely winner. CAREFREE HIGHWAY has never raced at a level this low on the turf before; she was well up the course in that last one, at Saratoga, but pre-race antics likely cost her and she was in against much better there. DRAWNTOMUNNY takes the blinkers off for her 2nd start off the layoff, both favorable angles for trainer Jane Cibelli; stretches out to a route for the first time and should be a factor from the start.

Analyst's statistics: Number of races picked, top pick winners and in parentheses, top pick finishes in the money.

SECOND RACE

BIG BOSS LADY was against the race flow in each of her last two tries on the dirt yet she managed to post a win and a runner-up finish, in her latest, when she was against an extreme pace scenario which favored speeds (note the inverted "S" in DRF pp's); makes her first start off the claim for trainer Jose Delgado, who wins at a high rate with such runners. POWERGIRL was moving well through the stretch two back, her last try on the main track; easily forgiven for that last one, on the turf, which she clearly does not prefer. TOP HAT INVASION goes long for the first time but trainer Jeffrey Englehart does well with stretch-outs and she catches a field that's a little light on pace.

MONMOUTH

THIRD RACE

INTO VANISHING has a strong set of works showing for her debut try and while her dam was best on the dirt she did score on the grass, albeit in a route; trainer Jonathan Thomas excels with turf sprinters and he has saddled four winning firsters in turf routes over the past three years, all of them 5/2 or less, meaning the board will be the best guide. MONTPELIER is easy to like off that debut try, when she set a quick pace under pressure and then just missed holding on late; the one to catch and beat. ABOVE THE LIMIT is the second starter out of an unraced dam, with the first runner, Fast Dreamer, running 2nd twice in his first three starts; barn always a threat first time out, and with grass sprinters.

FOURTH RACE

BRIDGETOTHEFUTURE doesn't win often but 11 of his 25 losses came on the turf, and he comes off a decent try under conditions similar to today's; he doesn't meet the deepest of fields and he may be able to nab that elusive 2nd career win given the right trip and an honest pace up front. LODI was wide on both turns in his latest and ran well to be beaten only two lengths, a solid effort; most importantly, he showed he can rate off the pace and make one run in that race, and that versatility gives jockey Antonio Gallardo some options as he tries to work out a trip. ROYAL COUP was caught very wide on the dirt turn last time out, then made a little middle move down the backstretch before he tired before the turn; Beyers put him in the mix.

FIFTH RACE

ALTEA is hardly a win machine but she does run her race every time, even when in against top-flight competition, as she was two back in the Grade 1 Jenny Wiley, when only two lengths behind subsequent Grade 1 Diana winner Rushing Fall; her Beyers suggest she's the one to beat in this Violet Stakes and that last work is an indication she retains her form. SHE'S GOT YOU, from the same barn as the top pick, rallied strongly despite moderate fractions in her U. S. debut at Belmont; could be the main threat to her uncoupled stablemate with a step forward in her second start off the long break. VALEDICTORIAN will take them as far as she can on the lead, and she is a candidate for improvement, since her latest was in the slop and she weakened only late going 1 1/8 miles two back; should be able to get loose rather easily.

SIXTH RACE

BOOJ was behind a few of these same runners last time out but she was caught up in a duel there after breaking from the outermost post in a nine-horse field, and she could well get clear in the opening stages today; could be good enough to last if she is in fact able to shake loose and back down the fractions. TARGET TALES is obviously the one to beat after running second in all of his three starts to date, though that is precisely what makes him a little dicey on the win end at a short price; adds blinkers for this and may show improved speed. WHAT'S UP MR. Z is the first starter out of a dam who won four races; he's shown some speed in his morning works and he doesn't seem to meet an exceptional field.

SEVENTH RACE

MAGNETISM is kin to four-time winner Aussie Land, and while that mare posted all of her wins in dirt sprints the dam also produced Reflected, who won her own debut on the grass; barn always dangerous first time out, especially with grass routers, in fact scoring earlier at this meet with debuting turfer Big Red Rocks. LITTLE NUTTER was part of a group of closers who made the finish of the Sorority a close one, and that effort and Beyer clearly stamp her a contender on the move back to the maiden ranks; needs pace but should get at least some help from the frontrunners. TIMED OUT is kin to at least two turf winners, including multiple stakes winner Point of Reference, who was best sprinting on the main track but did score on the green; certainly in good form, missing by less than a length in each of her last two.

EIGHTH RACE

MONEYMEISTER was a beaten favorite in each of his last two but those optional claimers at Finger Lakes feature some hard-hitting sprinters, and he's down below the level of the claim for this; best figures of 2020 clearly put him on the short list of contenders in this sprint, along with ROGUE PATRIOT. The latter comes off a win against a step lesser in his latest, and the resulting Beyer gives him strong credibility; he did benefit from a perfect trip there, making a regression likely if he doesn't get that same type of set up today, but he merits a long look off that figure nonetheless. EARNED SUCCESS was only a half-length behind ROGUE PATRIOT in that last one, and he had a more difficult trip than that rival; from the same barn as the top pick, he figures to try to set the table for his uncoupled stablemate.

NINTH RACE

NELLYSFORD is much more likely to run 2nd than she is to win this, if her overall record is any indication, but she did score two back when loose on the lead, and she also won earlier this year when she was able to sit off the pace and make one run; that versatility should work to her advantage as she tries to work out a trip from the hedge. PAYNTDEMBLUESAWAY makes her first start since January but she has run well when fresh in the past, missing by just a neck off a layoff last September, even if it was a shorter break than this one; seeks her fifth win in six turf sprint tries, with just a neck separating her from a perfect record under these conditions, but it is a little suspicious to see her back in a tag off this hiatus, given the allowance score when last seen. RACINGINTHES-TREET took full advantage of a loose lead in her latest but she doesn't need the lead to win; has solid turf/sprint connections in jockey Jose Ferrer and trainer Kathleen DeMasi.

TENTH RACE

DENY was up against it in his debut, trying to close in a paceless sprint at Tampa, but he did well to rally for the show and post a representative Beyer; he'll need to improve upon that figure to win this but that's certainly possible as he makes only his second career start. INSTINCTIVE RHYTHM is going to be a handful at a short price, coming off a pair of solid efforts, including his latest, over this strip; addition of Lasix only adds to the appeal, though he does figure to be an underlay. MR. SHADES OF GRAY was off the board when in against today's favorite in her debut run but he ran a solid race in defeat, dueling for the lead from the start and weakening only late; gets the rail again but could shake loose this time if again able to break alertly.

ELEVENTH RACE

CHAMPAGNE HORIZON didn't have the smoothest of trips in that last one but she still nearly caught the forwardly-placed TULA on the wire with a late surge, a solid effort and one which produced another strong Beyer; makes her first start off the Hollendorfer claim and she can turn the tables today if able to settle and make one run with clear sailing. TULA benefited from a clear stalking trip in that score last time, using her tactical speed to overcome post 12 and score; she's wide again but she should once again be well positioned thanks to her early zip. STORMY D gets back on the turf after she was rained off the grass in her latest, and this is surely her preferred surface; should be running late.

TWELFTH RACE

MO GOTCHA raced on the turf in both of his two starts this summer in New York but he's back on the main track for this and his steady, sharp dirt Beyers make him easy to like in his local debut; he usually goes longer but he broke his maiden at
