4 ZOOMER was never going to win the Westchester last time, though one can see why his connections wanted to give him a shot in that race based on his improved form over the winter; steps back a bit and can factor strongly if holding his form on short rest. 8 HIDDEN SCROLL has been an easy target while failing to pan out as a stakes horse despite showing flashes of real talent; can't trust him but he has fired fresh every time thus far, including triple-digit Beyer wins kicking off his campaigns as both a 3-and-4yo; he also won easily off the layoff last year. 7 CHESTERTOWN started out with some potential routing, but he had proven to be equally effective in shorter races since cutting back late last year; projects to have some pace in front of him here.
